Narration

Prologue

The concept of linear time is only recent in our thinking since we started to count the years and the relentless ticking clock. We measured time and therefore, we defined time. But there are no straight lines in the natural world.

Our: World, Moon, Sun, and Seasons are all circular. Across the globe ancient cultures: Roman, Greek, Mayan, Egyptian, native American, aboriginal Australian, Hindu, Buddhist all believed in circular and parallel time.

Does the ticking of time, then, define what time is, or is there more to it?

What would you do if you could change time?

Even if it changed your very being.

This is a story of one man's quest to alter time's events; believing there is no better time than the alternative present. But in doing so, has he lost a world, that held everything, that was dear to him?

*He surfs on the ripples of time and
He plunges to the past
He hopes he can change the tomorrow
But will his hopes last...*

A Musical Podcast (Hero's quest structure)

Narration

1.Timewasting

The concept of linear time is only recent in our thinking...

2.20 Seconds

To live is to love and be loved. What is life without love?

3. Time is Fine

We all convince ourselves that our time is fine. But how many of us truly reach our burning inner drive and fulfill our hearts desire?

4. The Draft

It is widely accepted that history repeats itself. If we can't learn from past mistakes then we are doomed to repeat them in the future.

5. Every Day I Die

The repetition and tedium of daily life can kill a man's soul. Where the worst part the day is waking and the best is the eventual slumber into oblivion. If you ae lucky!

6. The Time Machine

There is no limit to man's capabilities if he puts his mind to it.

7. Solace in the Solstice

For the briefest of moments all of the parallel times line up when the Sun, Moon and Earth align It is only in these brief moments of the Solar eclipse. that the time machine can be successfully launched.

8. Mr White

What is here now can only be from what the past has sent. A fellow GRACIOUS, BENEVOLENT and CHARMING time traveler arrives to set our traveler on his way.

9. Rabbit Hole

Everyone wants to change the world, but are you willing to bet your soul?

10. The Time Trip

In a world full of conflicts and hate, the only options you have is to accept it or change it.

11. Sometimes

If we could see into the future, we would no doubt, enjoy the past, better than we did when it was the present.

12. Windows 95

Dreams are a window into the soul.

13. Here Come the Floods

Who will save you when the floods come and the wrath of God reigns down? A king?

14. No-one Knows What's..

No one has been promised something, no one knows what's coming.

15. Time is Mean

Time is a loaded dice, it lends no hand and let's you fall.

16. The Sun won't shine in outer space

The outer space is an infinity of your choosing. It could be heaven or it could be hell.

17. Cheating Tlme

Only the undead can cheat time.

18. Still I believe

When all hope is lost, the only thing left is belief.

19. Epilogue

And so, our time traveler reflects on his path and where it has led him to. An empty world devoid of love and in constant limbo.

End Narration

You may be wondering how this tale came to be, if our traveler was lost in time. Did his message get through after all and is there a moral to this story. Let me give you a clue. You cannot change the past. There is an ORDER to the universe, and the ORDER will be mine. Mr. White
